TRAUB LIEBERMAN

SERVICES

Environmental Law

From regulatory and administrative proceedings to PRP notices and waste site clean-up, from leaking underground storage tanks to asbestos, lead, latex gloves and mold, Traub Lieberman attorneys have been called upon to defend clients in complex environmental cases.

The attorneys at Traub Lieberman have defended a wide array of litigation and enforcement actions, and represented clients in negotiations with administrative agencies and regulators. We have been involved in claims involving state and federal hazardous waste cleanups, as well as contamination involving air, water and soil. Our attorneys have defended clients in CERCLA and Superfund matters, Clean Water Act cases, claims resulting from exposure to hazardous chemicals, and underground storage tank issues. Our attorneys are also extensively involved in all aspects of hazardous products cases including chemicals, lead paint, silica and asbestos.
