Christian Romaguera is an associate in the firm's Palm Beach Gardens, Florida office. His practice is focused on litigating general liability, product liability, premises liability, and professional liability matters. Christian works closely with his clients from start to finish—from pre-litigation negotiations to post-judgment work. He has experience facing legal issues with little precedent and excels at developing and executing creative legal strategies with the goal of obtaining favorable results for his clients.

Christian is a native Floridian who was born and raised in Palm Beach County. After graduating from Cardinal Newman High School in West Palm Beach, he went on to double major in international affairs and political science at Florida State University, graduating in 2014. He earned his Juris Doctor from Stetson University College of Law, where he was a key member of the nationally-ranked trial team, served as the president of the Federalist Society, was a founding member of the Student Bar Association's Diversity Committee, and worked as a teaching assistant for trial advocacy and evidence.

Christian is an avid sports fan and often attends Panthers, Dolphins, Heat, Marlins, and Seminoles games. In his free time, Christian enjoys boating, pickleball, racquetball, tennis, and golf.
