Robert Biferie is an associate in the St. Petersburg office, where he dedicates himself to client-centered representation. Robert's practice is focused on insurance defense, including first-party property claims, third-party liability claims, insurance coverage disputes and premises and product liability claims. He applies a down-to-earth approach with a focus on risk mitigation and is tenacious when needed to serve his clients' interests.

Prior to becoming an attorney, Robert worked as a photographer and as a technician at a Photo Museum for nearly a decade. After deciding to pivot into law, he earned his law degree from Stetson University College of Law and worked in the Public Defender's office in Pinellas County for two years.
