Doug Gretz, an Associate of the firm's New Jersey office, prides himself on crafting favorable and comprehensive solutions to complex problems. Prior to joining the firm, Doug was an associate at a leading international law firm where he defended large corporations in commercial litigation in state and federal courts, as well as in government investigations. He also was an attorney of a federal regulatory agency where he investigated and litigated potential violations of law. Doug has also taught legal writing at Fordham University School of Law.

Doug earned a Bachelor of Arts in Law and Justice from Rowan University. He earned his Juris Doctor cum laude from Fordham University School of Law, where he was a member of the Fordham Law Review.

In his spare time, Doug enjoys spending time with his wife and young son, particularly exploring all of the outdoor attractions Monmouth County has to offer.
